

The Data Privacy Framework (DPF) is a new federal law that will help protect the privacy of the personal information of U.S. consumers. The DPF will require companies that collect and process the personal information of U.S. consumers to follow certain privacy principles and practices. The DPF will also require companies to provide consumers with certain rights, such as the right to access, delete, and port their personal information. The DPF will be enforced by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and the Department of Justice (DOJ). The DPF will take effect on January 1, 2024. 1. The first step is to create a new account on the Remitly website. This can be done by clicking on the "Sign Up" button in the top right corner of the homepage. You will need to provide your email address, create a password, and verify your email address.

• Once you have created an account, you can log in and go to the "Send Money" tab. From there, you can select the country you want to send money to and the amount you want to send.

• You can also use the Remitly mobile app to send money. The app is available for both iOS and Android devices.

• If you have any questions or need help, you can contact Remitly customer support. They are available 24/7 via chat, email, or phone.

• Finally, you can track the status of your money transfer using the Remitly website or app. You will receive an email notification when the money has been sent.

The second step is to verify your identity. This is required by law for all money transfers. You can verify your identity by providing a government-issued ID, such as a driver's license or passport. You can also verify your identity by providing a utility bill or a bank statement. Once you have verified your identity, you can proceed with sending money.
