PAYMENT AUTHORIZATION AGREEMENT

Last Updated: May 5, 2025

By clicking “Repay” in your Remitly app, you agree and authorize Remitly ADV, Inc. or its service providers (“we” or “us”) to debit your designated payment method for any one-time payment(s) you initiate to pay your Advance, or portion thereof, in the amount and on the date agreed upon at the time of your one-time payment. Any payment made prior to 11:59 am PST will be applied that day. Any payments made after 11:59 am PST will be applied the following or next business day.

You further agree and authorize to the following:

- If we are unable to debit your designated payment method for your payment, this will be deemed a failed payment. We will not charge any fees for your failed payment.
- You are responsible for any fees (such as declined, returned payment, overdraft) charged by the financial institution that issues your payment method or maintains your account. These fees are not charged by us.

By affirmatively selecting to schedule a single payment at a later date (“Scheduled Payment”), you agree and authorize the following terms:

- Remitly ADV, Inc. or its service providers (“we” or “us”) to debit your designated payment method to repay your Advance in the amount and on the date agreed upon at the time you selected Scheduled Payment.
- If we are unable to debit your designated payment method for your payment, this will be deemed a failed payment. We will not charge any fees for your failed payment.
- You are responsible for any fees (such as declined, returned payment, overdraft) charged by the financial institution that issues your payment method or maintains your account. These fees are not charged by us.

You can cancel your Scheduled Payment or change your Scheduled Payment, such as the amount and payment method, at any time prior to your payment being deducted in your Remitly app by selecting Manage > Remitly Flex > Repay > Schedule a Payment or the banner at the top of the page indicating that a payment has already been scheduled > Edit scheduled payment > Delete payment.

Advance Payment By affirmatively selecting a pre-authorized single payment (“AutoPay”), you agree and authorize the following terms:

- Remitly ADV, Inc. or its service providers (“we” or “us”) to debit your designated payment method to repay your Advance in the amount and on the dates agreed upon at the time you took out your Advance.
- If we are unable to debit your designated payment method for your future payment, this will be deemed a failed payment. We will not charge any fees for your failed payment.
- You are responsible for any fees (such as declined, returned payment, overdraft) charged by the financial institution that issues your payment method or maintains your account. These fees are not charged by us.

If you choose “Statement Balance” as your AutoPay amount:

- The amount of this payment is shown in your statement as “New Balance.” This amount will automatically be paid on the account due dates. Your statement balance is adjusted for payments made since your last statement date. We will only collect your AutoPay amount if you have a statement balance.
- The AutoPay amount will never be more than the New Balance. However, it may be less because payments, failed remittance transactions, and other credits may reduce the AutoPay amount if these events post to your account between the date of your payment authorization and the date your payment is processed.

If you choose “Other Amount” as your AutoPay amount:

- It is the amount that you choose that is deducted on your AutoPay dates. We will only collect your AutoPay amount if you have a statement balance.

- The AutoPay amount will never be more than the Other Amount.

However, it may be less if the balance shown on your statement is less than the Other Amount. Posted payments or other credits can also reduce the balance on your account to an amount that is below the AutoPay Other Amount.

You can turn off AutoPay or change your AutoPay settings such as the amount and payment method at any time prior to your payment being deducted in your Remitly app by selecting Manage > Remitly Flex > More > Membership details.

If you are a Remitly Flex Plus member, by signing up for Remitly Flex Plus membership, you agree and authorize the following terms:

- If we are unable to debit your designated payment method for your membership, this will be deemed a failed payment. We will not charge any fees for your failed payment; however, you may not be able to take out any further Advances or utilize any of the Flex Plus membership benefits until you have paid your membership fee.
- If you cancel your membership AutoPay, your enrollment as a Remitly Flex Plus member will be canceled at the end of the current term, and you will be reverted to the non-member Remitly Flex.
